8 critical data insights your housing association can access right now

Housing providers have access to a myriad of data on their tenants, their properties and most importantly, their financial position. But for this data to provide real value it needs to be accessible, giving employees the insight they need to make more informed decisions, fast.

Faced with growing challenges from funding constraints to regulatory compliance, data clarity has never been more important. Now, more than ever, housing associations need to be able to see the bigger picture so that they can make agile decisions with confidence.

Get the data you need...fast

Hampered by silos, legacy systems and disparate sources – the data challenges facing housing associations can feel insurmountable. But by adopting a fresh approach that harnesses the latest tools you can start accessing the data you need within a matter of weeks.

Unlock the power of real-time intelligence

Thanks to Microsoft Fabric you can spend less time managing your data and more time unlocking its value. This agile AI-driven platform can collect data from any source, drawing together your most important information before visualising it in easy-to-use dashboards using Power BI.

Because data flows are built using existing sources from within your current ecosystem, housing associations can unlock critical insights without expensive or time-consuming implementation processes.
